

Drug Abuse

Drug abuse is one of the banes of modern society. It has hit all regions and all sections of our society. It is found in rural and urban areas, among poor and the rich among the men and women. But it is most overwhelmingly practiced by young boys and girls in hostels in almost all educational and technical institutions.

Drug abuse is there in almost all the countries of the world. India is more vehemently a transit country as it is situated between the Golden Triangle comprising Thailand, Burma and Cambodia and Golden Crescent comprising Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran where most of the drugs are concerned, and a large number of drugs pass through India to reach other countries, this takes place through drug mafia who have further links with formidable terrorists and smugglers. And in the process, many young men and women in our own country too fall victims to this diabolical habit. Pakistan, through its ISI, is indulging in a proxy war in Kashmir against India with the help of money earned through this drug mafia. Thus, drugs and terrorism have very strong links.

The habit becomes so confirmed that the victim becomes a slave to the drug. It is found in rural and urban areas, among poor and the rich among the men and women. But it is most overwhelmingly practiced by young boys and girls in hostels in almost all educational and technical institutions. Through its ISI, it is indulging in a proxy war in Kashmir against India with the help of money earned through this drug mafia. Thus, drugs and terrorism have very strong links. Withdrawal symptoms are acute and serious.

A lot of money is involved in drugs. For instance, one kg. of heroin is valued at one crore rupees in the international market. That is why the drug mafia is so active.

The govt. have opened certain drug de-addiction centers where the drug addicts should be taken at the earliest before their condition becomes horrible which may finally prove fatal.
