

A Patience

It was winter season. It snowed heavily. The roads and fields were covered with snow. It was difficult to see the road or one's path. A man who was to go to a particular city lost his way. His feet would sink in the snow. He was tired and extremely hungry. But he did not lose courage.

The next day he saw a light at a distance. He walked in that direction. He was thrilled to find that it was a small house in which a lady lived. The lady gave him shelter and food. He slept calmly and thanked god.

Moral: patience ultimately wins.
