

Report Writing

A report is an official/semiofficial piece of writing which involves giving information about an occurrence, an event or an investigation. By its nature, a report has to be

- Factual
- Concise
- Objective, and
- Free from any bias

The writer of the report must state only the happenings and occurrences in sequential order. He/She does not have the freedom to express his/her opinions or conclusions. Similarly, elaborations, descriptions, and irrelevant matter cannot be included.

A newspaper report must be comprehensive but brief; factual yet interesting.

Hence factual reporting is an actual coverage of an event. It is a brief review of a situation or a process that includes only the relevant points and information. It is usually written in the third person and in indirect speech. The passive voice is used. The language used is neutral and figurative. Ornamental language is avoided. The content should include when, where, why and how of the topic to be written about.

A newspaper report has all the following qualities:

- It has to have an appropriate language.
- Since the events being reported are in the recent past, the past indefinite, past continuous, and past perfect tenses are used.
- The language used is formal.
The passive voice is preferred.
'Journalese' or journalistic vocabulary is used:
 - (a) "according to sources"/according to a spokesman";
 - (b) Words like 'murderer', 'smuggler', etc. are preceded by "suspected/alleged".
- There should be a logical development of ideas, i.e., causes/reasons, effects, or consequences.
- It should be comprehensive and reflect the opinions of people. It should contain views of all the sides involved.
- Personal pronouns are to be avoided.

The report for a school magazine follows the same format as a newspaper report but the language is semi-formal. The writer's name and class are mentioned just below the heading/title of the report.

Points to remember (for news report)

- A news report should have a headline, date, and place of origin of the news.
- It should carry the byline/name of the reporter.
- It should contain only relevant information.

Points to remember (for first-person accounts)

- Describe the incident objectively.
- The description must be logical and in sequence.

Points to remember (for factual description)

- Be objective.
- The presentation should be logical and systematic.

Points to remember (for a factual description of the process)

- Give a step-by-step account of the activity, experiment, and procedure. It is essential to provide a heading and promoting the reporter's name is essential.

Headline

Every news article has a headline to attract the attention of the reader. The headline must state the topic of the news in a strong, short phrase or statement.

A headline must be:

- catchy
- brief – leave out articles, prepositions, etc. where possible and use abbreviations/shortened word – forms.

Byline

Since this is your report, you need to let the reader know who wrote it. The line with your name on it is called the "byline" because it tells by whom the article is written. Write the word "by" followed by your first and last name. On the next line, write the name of your school and city.

Lead paragraph

A lead paragraph usually answers the questions: Who, What, Where, When, Why. Remember to write about these in your lead paragraph:

- name or names of the person or thing this news is about
- the place where this incident happened
- the day, date, and time of the day when it happened.
- details of the incident
- reasons why the incident happened

Paragraph 2

Eyewitness accounts add to the authenticity of the news. Also, they may interest the reader. Include some quotes from the eyewitnesses' comments. Also, describe what they felt about the incident.

Paragraph 3

Describe the future course of action is planned.

Note: Remember to use simple, clear but formal language.

Include the following details in your report:

Event/Function

1. Factual details:

- name/nature of the event
- occasion
- organisers
- date, time, venue

2. sequence/details of the event

3. the detail is about Chief Guest/judges/participants

4. highlights of the event:

- Chief Guest's message

- vote of thanks
 - conclusion of the event
 - comment(s) on the quality of the program

Accidents

- what happened
- where, when, how
- people/vehicles involved
- loss of life and property
- details of rescue and relief operations
- the accident scene
- details of casualties—dead, injured, hospitalised
- inquiry ordered (if required)
- grants to victims' kin/injured (if required)
- comment by a reporter on similar tragedies/accidents

Your school invited the parents of Kalpana Chawla to be the chief guests at a special function organised to pay tribute to the Indian woman astronaut. As the Activities Editor of your school magazine, write a report in 150-200 words on the event. You are Rishiraj/Rajshri Verma. (10 marks)

Answer:

1. Remembering Kalpana Chawla
2. Our school organised a function on 5th April, 20XX to pay tribute to India's great space traveller Kalpana Chawla who became a martyr to the cause of space research.
3. Kalpana Chawla's parents, Mrs & Mr. Chawla were the chief guests. The function began sharply at 9.00 a.m. when Mr. Chawla tearfully garlanded the portrait of his illustrious daughter. Solemn devotional songs were sung. The highlight of the programme was Mr. Chawla's speech in which he narrated the incidents of Kalpana's childhood and years in Punjab Engineering College. The Principal declared that our newly constructed library would be named after her. At the end of the programme, an open session was held where the students could interact with the proud parents of Kalpna Chawla.
4. It was an inspiring as well as a touching event. The programme concluded with a vote of thanks by our Vice-Principal.
5. Rishiraj Verma XIB

◆ Analysis:

1. Heading: This summarises the main event-paying tribute to Kalpana Chawla-which is the subject of this report. The heading should be underlined. Every word should begin with a capital letter.
2. The first paragraph is introductory. It gives factual information about the event what it was and when it was organised.
3. The second paragraph gives details of the event. It tells us about the
 - Chief guest
 - Sequence of happenings, and
 - Main Highlights
4. The third paragraph gives the conclusion.
5. The writer's name, class, and section are stated at the end of the report. These can be written immediately below the heading too.
6. Notice that no irrelevant information is given.
7. The language throughout is simple, direct, and formal. No figures of speech or ornamentation of language is used.

Question 2.

You are Samidha/ Ajay of Jan Kalyan School Delhi. Your school organised an inter-school debate competition last month. Write a report of this event in 150-200 words for your school magazine giving details like schedule, venue, topic, winners etc. [NCT 2018]

Answer:

Inter-School Debate

Our school, Jan Kalyan School, was the venue for an interschool debate. It was a very successful event due to the enthusiastic participation schools.

The topic chosen was interesting, 'Nothing is Permanent Except Change'. The judges have known personalities from education, media, and journalism. The debate started sharp at 9 am in the school auditorium. Intelligent and lively expression of points and counterpoints by the speakers charged the atmosphere. There was rebuttal from the audience to test the speakers further. The judges had a tough job picking up the best from the best. The announcement of results brought great cheers and some disappointments.

After the debate the guests were served refreshments. Thus our annual event came to a happy end.

You are Mohit/Mamta, the Secretary of Eco Club of your school. Recently you celebrated "Tree Plantation Week". Write a report for your school magazine in 150-200 words. [NCT 2015]

Answer:

Tree Plantation Week

We celebrated 'Tree Plantation Week' on 27 July 20XX. The members of the 'Eco Club' were congratulated profusely. I, as the president of the club, was satisfied that my efforts had borne fruit. We had planned to involve all the students of classes 5 to 12 in some way or the other. Each class was asked to do some research and choose a plant. Each class was allotted a patch of land in the school garden which they had to prepare according to the needs of their chosen plant.

On 27 July, our chief guest Ms. Kiran Bedi arrived promptly at 9 a.m. She was received by members of the Eco Club and welcomed by our Principal. She spoke briefly and encouragingly to the students about the importance of trees. She was then led to plant a 'neem' sapling.

While the chief guest was served refreshments, students of classes 5 to 12 planted their saplings. The chief guest, our Principal and the students were very pleased with the programme.

Question 5.

The 'Environment Club' of your school organised a cleanliness drive to keep the school campus and the locality clean. The students cleaned the classrooms, corridors, playgrounds etc. and also organised a rally to create awareness among the masses about the importance of cleanliness. Write a report to be published in the school magazine about the drive in 150-200 words describing the efforts made by the students to make it a success. You are Anjani/Ankita of Class XI, Ajanta Public School, Delhi.

Answer:

Cleanliness Drive

As part of the Gandhi Jayanti, the Environment Club organised a cleanliness drive from 1st to 7th October. The drive encompassed the school and the neighbouring locality. Students were given incentives to keep their classes clean. A panel of judges picked up the five cleanest classes and awarded them prizes. Groups of students, by rotation, kept the area near the canteen litter free and the playgrounds clean.

The high point of the drive was our work in our locality. We organised a rally which was addressed by the President and Vice President of the Club. Groups of students went out to clean the neighbourhood.

'The Environment Club of our school is doing commendable work. The President, Anupam Verma is extremely enthusiastic about environmental projects.'

The Environment Club conveyed its message both by word and deed.

As the student leader of your school, you have been given the responsibility of organising a "poster making competition" on the occasion of Independence Day. Write a report in 150-200 words describing how you plan to go about it. You are Raman Gill of Adarsh Vidhya Mandir, Karnal. You may use the following suggestions:

Notice on a noticeboard – participants – announce topic – give rules – painting material – appoint judges – select venue – describe the event – results – prize distribution by Chief Guest.

Answer:

Poster Making Competition

I had to organise a poster making competition for the Independence Day celebration next week. I put up a notice announcing the event and inviting participation from the students of classes IX and XI. The response was quite good. Twenty students from class IX and twenty from class XI were found eligible by our teachers.

The competition was held on 12th August. The students were given three topics and had to prepare a poster on one of them. Paper was provided but the students had to bring their own painting material. Three judges were to pick the winners. The venue was the Artroom. Students were given one hour for the poster which had to have one picture in four colours and a text in 50 words.

The students produced excellent work. The judges picked up the three best entries. The Chief Guest gave away the prizes to the winners.

- teacher encouraged to be confident
- new friends in new school

On the basis of the input given above, draft a report titled 'My First Day' in 150-200 words.

Answer:

My First Day
by Ashok Singh 11A

On the basis of my CBSE results of Ashok Singh 11 A class 10, I got admission in a prestigious school of Delhi in class 11. Coming from a small neighbouring town, I was a bit nervous. I felt the students, teachers and the environment would be too 'hi-fi'.

On the first day, I was quite nervous surprisingly, as I was the topper of my old school. I was nervous, and quite friendless. I entered the class and waited for the teacher. It was our English period, my favourite time of the day, and the teacher put a simple question to me. To my utter bewilderment, I found could not answer. Even greater surprise was the smile of encouragement from the teacher. I relaxed and answered the question. The rest of the day went like a dream – All the teachers were supportive and the students suitably impressed with my grades.
