Sir,

Please permit me to point out the need of a planned family in Free India. I shall feel grateful if you kindly publish my views in the columns of your esteemed paper.

Family Planning is the greatest need of India. After China, India is the largest populated country in the world. Like other developing countries, India too faces problems of unemployment, poverty and ignorance. The increasing number is the root cause of all these problems confronting the country. This growing number has become a matter a great anxiety both for the planner and for the national leaders.

A small family is a boon whereas a big family a curse. Family welfare leads to the welfare of the country. We should have children by choice and not by chance. The desire to beget a male child leads the parents into a jigsaw. The time is not far when they will have to be content with one child whether male or female.

Scientific methods, such as, the use of contraceptives, vasectomy, etc. to keep the population under control are known to everybody. T.V., radio and newspaper carry on propaganda for family planning voluntary organizations which can best hit the target. Mahatma Gandhi advised self-control. Late marriage is another remedy suggested by some. The fact remains that the increasing numbers must be checked otherwise the writing on the wall is very much clear.

I hope you will give a wide publicity to these views of mine.

Thanking you,

Yours faithfully,

Balkar Singh.
