Section A

1. Read the passage carefully and answer the following questions carefully: (8 marks)

One of the most devastating earthquakes occurred in Nepal on April 25, 2015. It occurred at 11:56 Nepal Standard Time, with a magnitude of 7.8 Mw or 8.1 Ms and a maximum Mercalli Intensity of IX (Violent). Its epicentre was east of the district of Lamjung, and its focal point was at a depth of approximately 8.2 km (5.1 mi). It was the worst natural disaster to strike Nepal since the 1934 Nepal-Bihar earthquake. It killed over 8,000 people and injured more than 21,000.

The earthquake triggered an avalanche on Mount Everest, killing at least 19, making April 25, 2015, the deadliest day on the mountain in history. The earthquake triggered another huge avalanche in the Langtang valley, where 250 people were reported missing. Hundreds of thousands of people were made homeless with entire villages flattened, across many districts of the country. Centuries-old buildings were destroyed at UNESCO World Heritage sites in the Kathmandu Valley, including some at the Kathmandu Durbar Square, the Patan Durbar Square, the Bhaktapur Durbar Square, the Changu Narayan Temple, and the Swayambhunath Stupa. Geophysicists and other experts had warned for decades that Nepal was vulnerable to a deadly earthquake, particularly because of its geology, urbanization, and architecture.

According to the USGS, the temblor was caused by a sudden thrust, or release of built-up stress, along the major fault line where the Indian Plate, carrying India, is slowly diving underneath the Eurasian Plate, carrying much of Europe and Asia.

Kathmandu, situated on a block of crust approximately 120 km (74 miles) wide and 60 km (37 miles) long, reportedly shifted 3 m (10 ft) to the south in a matter of just 30 seconds.

2. Read the passage carefully and answer the following questions carefully: (12 marks)

It is a famous saying that “Time and tide wait for no man”. So, it is important to use the most of your time instead of procrastinating.

We often find procrastination in the field of education. Students neglect their studies during their school term and wait till the last minute to prepare for examinations. They spend so much time playing games and chatting with their friends that they eventually lose track of time and start panicking at the last moment - a few days before the examinations. These are the students that do not perform to their optimum level in the examinations.

On the contrary, toppers are consistent in their studies and strike the right balance between education and play. They never panic at the last moment because they are already well-prepared for their examinations.

Time is just like a river; it keeps flowing forward and never turns back. You may delay your work and wait for the last minute to complete your tasks at hand, but time will continue to move forward.

Farmers have to keep a close watch of time because they follow strict schedules for planting and harvesting. Their farming schedules are based on the weather and if they delay their planting or harvesting time by even a day, it will spell disaster for them because time will not wait for them.

It is essential for us to respect time and not misuse it. You may have heard of this famous saying, “To realize the value of one year, ask a student who failed an examination. To realize the value of one month, ask a mother who gave birth to a premature baby. To realize the value of one minute, ask a person who just missed his train. To realize the value of one second, ask someone who just avoided an accident". Time is precious; even one second of your life is valuable. So, do not waste it. If we show respect for time, time would also show the same respect to us.

On the basis of your reading of the passage, answer the following questions briefly: (12×1=12)

Answer briefly: (2×4 = 8)

3. Swachha Bharat Abhiyan or Clean India Campaign

Cleanliness is most important for physical well-being and a healthy environment. It is essential for everyone to learn about cleanliness, hygiene, sanitation and the various diseases that are caused due to poor hygienic conditions. Prime Minister Narendra Modi launched his nationwide cleanliness campaign, the Swachha Bharat Abhiyan or Clean India Campaign from the Valmiki Basti on 2nd October 2014. Addressing the nation at the launch, Modi asked 1.25 billion people to join the 'Swachha Bharat Abhiyan' and promote it to everyone. Modi himself swept a pavement at Valmiki Basti, a colony of sanitary workers. Launching the campaign, Modi reminded the people that cleanliness is not only the responsibility of the Safai Kamgars but also the responsibility of 1.25 billion Indians. The Prime Minister showed his deep concern at mothers and daughters going in the open to relieve themselves. Constructing toilets in schools and villages, particularly for girls and women, would be the top priority for the government. The Prime Minister also pledged to people saying, I would not litter and won't allow anyone to do so. Cleanliness is next to godliness

Dear Diary,

Shifting to a new city and a new school, in the mid-session, had left me very unhappy. I badly missed my old school, teachers and friends. But today, my new classmates went out of their way to help me when I fell down the stairs in the school. They took me to the first-aid room and even did my written work. It has been just one week, but I have started to feel comfortable already.

4. Greed "A Bottomless Pit"

An old man had two daughters. He loved both of them. Once he asked the girls to choose one from the two bags of bricks and money. One girl was a bit greedy and selfish but the other one was good and loved her father a lot. The greedy one though didn't understand what was that she chose the bag of money while others took the bag of bricks.

The father smiled and he said, the bag of money is only the money he had saved, it was a small amount. But the bag of bricks meant their house. He had built quite a big and comfortable home for his daughters. And whatever the girls chose will be theirs now. At last, the greedy girl felt sad extremely for her decision. But the good one said to her sister that they both can live in the house happily. The greedy girl felt bad for herself. Their father was happy to see them like that and sadly he passed away that evening.

Moral of the story :

we should not place the money before our assets of love and affection that are created by our parents.

Greed has a Woeful End

Once a tiger killed a woman passing through the forest. The woman was wearing a gold bangle. The tiger washed it in the nearby pool and kept it for future use. One day, a young man came to the pool. He was dirty and tired and needed a bath. But, just before he could enter the pool, he noticed the tiger and hesitated. The tiger could read his mind; therefore, he spoke in a very sober and calm tone. He told the young man that he had given up his old sinful ways and was leading a saintly life. Violence and bloodshed were nowhere in his life. As a goodwill gesture, he offered the shining gold bangle to the young man. Greed overtook the young man's fear. He proceeded to pick up the gold bangle. As he came near, the tiger pounced on him and had a bellyful of the meal.

For three months, the author restrained her from visiting Mysore. At last, he took his wife to Mysore zoo to meet Baba. The author and his friends had guessed that the bear would not recognise her after three months. But Bruno had also been going through the same sadness as the narrator's wife. As soon as Baba saw her, he recognised her and cried with happiness. She ran up to him and patted him. He stood up on his head in delight. Both of them were very happy and excited to meet each other. For the next three hours, she did not leave the cage. At last, the 'closing time' came and she had to leave. The author's wife wept bitterly. She felt that she could not live without the bear. She pleaded the superintendent to send Baba back. He was a kind man. He consented and Baba was brought back into the author's home.

The author presents the busiest streets of Kathmandu as 'vivid, mercenary and religious'. Besides the famous places like the Pashupatinath temple and the Boudhanath stupa, Kathmandu also has small shrines and deities. He says that it is a place with a beautiful, vivid landscape and a lot of religious activity goes on all the time. It is 'mercenary' as it is a tourist place and a lot of business flourishes in the narrow streets. As in any other tourist place, there are shops selling various things like cosmetics from western countries, rolls of film, chocolates, antique things of Nepal, and copper pots and pans. There is a bedlam of noises created by radios playing film songs, sounds of car-horns, bells of bicycles and vendors shouting to invite the customers. One can find fruit sellers, flute sellers, and hawkers selling postcard photographs. There are also the cows bellowing as they hear the sounds of motorcycles. Thus, the streets of Kathmandu are full of noise and din.

11. The child went to the fair along with his parents. He was very happy. He was attracted by the colourful and beautiful things. He saw balloons, flower garlands and sweets. He saw a juggler showing tricks. He also saw a roundabout. But he was sad because his parents rejected all his demands. He could not enjoy the juggler's tricks. Suddenly, he found his parents were missing. He started crying for his parents. A kind man tried to console him. But the child lost interest in everything. He wanted to join his parents again. He cried, "I want my mother. I want my father!". The man started walking back on the same route which the child had taken. So he took the child to the snake charmer. He asked him to listen to the nice music being played by the snake - charmer. The child shut his ears with his fingers and screamed loudly that he wanted his parents.

Johnsy was a young girl and lived with one of her friends. She was an artist. She fell seriously ill and was suffering from pneumonia. Her friend Sue looked after her. The doctor kept visiting Johnsy and did a regular check-up. But there was no sign of improvement in her condition. Her condition went from bad to worse. Both the doctor and Sue were worried. Later on, it was found that she was depressed and had associated herself to the ivy creeper climbing on the brick wall opposite to their window. She had a perception that she would die with the fall of the last leaf of that ivy creeper. In that state of mind, she lost her interest in everything. She kept lying calm gazing through the window. They tried to convince her, but in vain. She had lost the will to live.
