[READING COMPREHENSION]

Note : Read the poem and answer the questions given below :

Weavers, weaving at break of day,
Why do you weave a garment so gay?
Blue as the wings of a halcyon wild,
We weave the robes of a new-born child.
Weavers, weaving at fall of night,
Why do you weave a garment so bright?
Like the plumes of peacock, purple and green,
We weave the marriage-veils of a queen.

Weavers, weaving solemn and still,
What do you weave in the morning chill?
White as a feather and white as a cloud,
We weave a dead man's funeral shroud.

[LITERATURE TEXT BOOK]

Note : Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it :

A wonderful old tale is told about the painter Wu Daozi, who lived in the eighth century. His last painting was a landscape commissioned by the Tang Emperor Xuanzong, to decorate a palace wall. The master had hidden his work behind a screen, so only the Emperor would see it. For a long while, the Emperor admired the wonderful scene, discovering forests, high mountains, waterfalls, clouds floating in an immense sky, men on hilly paths, birds in flight. "Look, Sire", said the painter, in this cave, at the foot of the mountain, dwells a spirit." The painter clapped his hands, and the entrance to the cave opened. "The inside is splendid, beyond anything words convey. Please let me show Your Majesty the way." The painter entered the cave; but the entrance closed behind him, and before the astonished Emperor could move or utter a word, the painting had vanished from the wall. Not a trace of Wu Daozi's brush was left - and the artist was never seen again in this world.
