

If I were the monitor of my class

Every school boy wishes to be the monitor of his class. But the job of a monitor is not an easy one. Very few boys possess the qualities of a successful monitor. The monitor must be strong and healthy and good at studies. If I were the monitor, I would perform my duties very well.

The main job of monitor is to maintain discipline in the absence of the teacher. Many boys quarrel and make mischief in the teacher. Many boys quarrel and make mischief in the class room. I shall try to control the class. I shall keep the teacher informed about naughty boys. If anything happens against the interests of the school, it will be reported to the Principal, Discipline cannot be maintained only by force. It requires all the qualities of a good student. So I shall try to be an ideal student. An idle and dishonest monitor can never be obeyed and respected. I shall set an example in punctuality and regularity for others to follow. Thus I shall be very helpful to my teacher.

I shall take keen interest in extracurricular activities such as games, debates, scouting etc. I shall organize functions and picnics. All the interests of my fellow students will be safeguarded.

I would be a good sportsman. Tolerance and do operation are the two main qualities of a sportsman. The needy students will always be helped. I shall not be proud, but I shall humbly perform all these duties. I shall look upon it not as an extra burden but a pleasure and honor. I shall discharge my duties honestly and cheerfully.
