7. How is test cricket a unique game in many ways?Answer:

Test cricket is unique in itself since it can go on for five days without any conclusive victory and the match ending up as a draw between the teams, while no other game takes half as much time to finish. A football match, for examples, ends in 90 minutes.

8. How is cricket different from other team games?Answer:

Cricket is different from other team games since it was the first game to be codified. The length of the pitch is specified as 22 yards, however there are no specific measurements for the shape or size of the ground. Cricket is played in various formats like five day test matches, one day internationals and now, even twenty twenty matches while other team games usually follow only one format. Also, unlike other team sport a cricket match could go draw without either of the team winning the match.

9. How have advance in technology affected the game of cricket?Answer:

The advancement in technology has improved the manufacturing standards of protective equipment's. Vulcanised rubber is used to make pads and gloves, and helmets are made from lightweight synthetic material. However, the basic equipment's (the ball & the bat) are still handmade.

10. Explain how cricket changed with changing times and yet remained unchanged in some ways.

Answer:

Cricket has changed with changing times and yet remained unchanged in some ways. The shape of the bat evolved over the time to its current flat and straight form. Earlier, it was made from one single piece of wood but now it has two components, the blade and the handle made of two different kinds of woods. Now, the players use protective equipment's made with technologically advanced material. However, the basic playing equipment's are still handmade.

- Two-hour journey by bus
- an old and crowded bus
- Friendly passengers
- Visit to a village fair where the match is to be played
- the match between two village teams
- makeshift stumps, rough pitch and a rubber ball
- the match was enjoyable, but the trip was tiring

Answer:

Last week, my brother and I decided to go to our neighbouring village to watch a cricket match organised by the Gram panchayat. We woke up early on the day of the match, had breakfast, packed some snacks and headed to the bus stop. It was a two-hour long journey and the bus was old and crowded. We had to sit close with our knees knocking against each other's. The passengers were friendly and did not mind someone's head against their shoulders.

We got done at the main road and walked to the village fair where the match was to be played. It was a pleasant day and everybody was excited for the match to begin. The match was held between our native village and the host village, voluntarily umpired by the block officer who also the chief guest of the match. The organising panchayat had used makeshift stumps and rubber ball on a rough pitch for the friendly match. There were no pads, gloves or helmets. It was an enjoyable day, with our village team winning the match in the last moment but the trip was exhausting.
