

A Prize Distribution Function

The Prize Distribution Function is a great day in the life of the shining boys of the college. Brilliant students of the college wait for this function eagerly. I was a proud winner of several academic prizes this year. The Minister of Education was the Chief Guest. As the academic procession entered the hall, the students stood up in their seats. The function started with an impressive Saraswati Vandana recited by a group of students in glittering white dresses. The Principle of the college welcomed the Chief Guest highlighted the achievements of the college. The prize winners were then called upon one by one to receive their prizes. A big applause greeted me as I went up the Dias to receive my prize. I felt like a hero. My parents were present in the hall. In his speech, the Chief Guest congratulated the prize winners and exhorted others to work hard. He announced a sum of rupees one lack out of his discretionary fund for adding a new wing to the college library. The function came to a close with the national anthem. The prize winner and the staff had a group photograph and tea with the Chief Guest.
