

Essay Writing

Essay – I Love My India

The name of our country is Bharat or Bharatvarsh. It is also called Hindustan. In English, it is called India. It is our motherland. Ours is a big country is one of the biggest countries of the world The Himalayas are in the north of country. To its south are the Indian Ocean and Sri Lanka. The Arabian Sea and Pakistan are the west and the Bay of Bengal, Bangladesh, and Myanmar are to the east of our country.

There are many rivers in India. Our country has many mountains and mountain ranges too. There are many big cities in our country. Delhi is the Capital of our country. It is a big city. Kolkata, Mumbai and Chennai are also very city.

Our country is called land of villages. About eighty percent of its people live in villages. Most of them are farmers. They grew food too us. More than one thousand twenty fifth crore people live in India. They belong to different religions. They speak different languages. But they are all Indians.

India is great country. We love our country very much. We are proud of our motherland. We call it 'Bharatmata'.

Essay – Computer – A revolution today

Computer is a machine that performs calculation and processes information with great speed and precision. A computer can handle vast amount of information and can solve complicated problems. It can take thousands of individual pieces of data and turn them into more useful information with very high speed and utmost accuracy. The most powerful computer can perform billions of calculation per second.

Computers have changed the way people used to work earlier. They handle many task in business, education, manufacturing, transportation and other fields. Many tedious tasks earlier performed by large number of clerical workers are now done by computers. They provide data for scientist and other researchers for better understanding of nature. They help people in office to prepare official documents. They enable designers and artists to make things that are unique.

Computers produce new information quickly, accurately and are changing people's lifestyles. People can access large electronic databased from remote places. For these reasons, the computer is one of the most interesting and important machines every invented. The most common type of computer is the digital computer. Digital computer perform tasks by changing one set of numbers into another set. All data-numbers, pictures, sound, symbols, and works are converted into machine numbers inside the computer.

How can we write a good essay?

When writing an essay, it is significant to get your time and give your writing a lot of thought. If you ask yourself how to write a good essay, first of all make a conceived structure. Any writing becomes much better when it is written valid and in easy to read and understand form. An outline will help you with this.