

Five Virtues I Admire Most

The modern man is so materialistic that he is unable to appreciate the shelving virtual of life. The five virtues which I admire most are truth, honesty, straight forwardness, bravery and patriotism.

Now I'll explain the reason for admiring there virtues. First of all, lest take the truth. The truth is a virtue which nobody can challenge. A man of truth is a man of power. Mahatma Gandhi defeated the mighty British Empire with the weapon of his power of truth which he pursued in a forceful way.

Now, let us take honestly. An honest man is the most reliable man and everybody is ready to believe in him. An honest businessman always has a good number of customers. But a dishonest man loses all his customers one by one.

Straightforwardness is also a great virtue. A man who expresses his mind freely earns the admiration of one and all. Everybody knows that such a man has nothing to hide. If such a man finds anything wrong in the behaviour of anybody, he tells the latter to his face and the latter generally doesn't take at it and improve, his ways.

Bravely is a wonderful virtue. Many good men in the world cannot achieve success in life simply because they lack courage. Real braving is selfless in nature.

Patriotism is another great virtue. It is essential for all of us to love our country.
