

A Visit To A Zoo

During an education tour arranged by our college authorities, we stayed for three days at Delhi. We spent two days in seeing historical buildings and other places of interest. On the third day, we went to see the famous zoo. There was an arrangement for van which could take the visitors to different parts of the zoo. But we preferred to go on foot. The first thing we saw was a variety of water birds swimming in a small stream. Next our eyes fell on a rhinoceros lying in the muddy water. Then, we saw the cages of birds and small animals. We could never imagine that there was a such a great variety of pigeons, parrots, sparrows, rats and rabbits. We then moved on to the snake enclosure nearby. I had never seen such a variety of snakes in so many sizes and colors. Next, we visited a big lawn in which there were deer and stags. There was a high wall on all sides of the enclosure. There was a stream surrounding another enclosure in which there were lions and tigers. When they roared, our hearts sank. But at the same time, it was quite a thrilling experience to see them. There was a big part of the zoo yet to be seen but we were dead tired. So, we dropped the idea of seeing the remaining part of the zoo and came back.