Types of Relative Pronouns

- Who
- Whom
- That
- Which
- Whose

Who

It is used to refer to the animate noun of the sentence. The noun in such cases is usually a person. The pronoun 'who' is used to refer to the doer of the action. In other words, it is used to refer to the subject.

1. This is the man who repairs computers.

Relative Relative Clause
Pronoun

Who repairs computers?
The man

2. Krishna is the grocer who refused to return the change.

Relative Relative Clause

Relative Relative Clause
Pronoun

2. The glass, which is filled up to the brim, has fallen down.

Relative Relative Clause
Pronoun

In most cases, 'that' and 'which' are interchangeable. However, in formal usage, both have specific uses. 'That' and 'which' are used when the accompanying clause is crucial to the sentence. Removal of 'which' would render the sentence incomplete.

1. This is the boat that/which the fishermen found.

This is the boat.

The pronoun 'which' can also be used to introduce a modifying clause that is not crucial to the sentence. It is separated from the rest of the sentence with the help of two commas. Removal of the clause will not effect any change in the meaning of the sentence.

2. The notebook, ~~which was kept on the table~~, was ripped to pieces by the pups.

The notebook was ripped to pieces by the pups.

Whose

It is used to indicate possession by an animate noun or the pronoun.

Types of Relative Clauses

- Restrictive relative clause
- Non-restrictive relative clause

Restrictive relative clause: It is a clause which describes the preceding noun in manner that distinguishes it from the rest of its kind. The clause is not separated from the rest of the sentence with commas.

This is the boy who robbed you yesterday.

My cousin Madhu who lives in China arrived for my sister's wedding.

The book that you saw on my table yesterday is a gift.

Non-restrictive relative clause: It is a clause which is placed after the noun that is already defined. The clause only provides additional information which is not important to the sentence. It is separated from the rest of the sentence with the help of commas.

The hat, which Aunt Gertrude gifted me, is missing.

Manjeet, who is known for his culinary skills, cooked a delicious meal.

Mr Rao, whom I worked for in the 70s, lives in this building.
